

Indigenous Navigator

Overview of tools and resources

The Indigenous Navigator offers a range of tools and resources for monitoring indigenous peoples' rights that can be used in multiple ways. Some users will need only the questionnaires to generate data on indigenous peoples' human rights and development situation. Others will benefit from the broader range of tools and resources that offer extensive guidance and can be applied to a multitude of different areas of work.

Online questionnaires and a question database

- Community Questionnaires and National Questionnaires (see Training Module 7, 10 and 11)
- Key tools for indigenous communities and organizations as well as other actors who want to monitor the level of respect, recognition and fulfilment of indigenous peoples' rights. While some facilitation will be needed for communities to use the questionnaires (in most cases), the questionnaires are easily accessible and can be used by people with no human rights training – online guidance for each question explains how to answer¹
- The questionnaires build on a systematic analysis of the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples. Those who want to understand the technical approach behind the questionnaires can access information on which articles the specific questions monitor

Question Guides to the Community Questionnaire and the National Questionnaire

- Provide an overview of which UNDRIP articles, WCIP Commitments and SDG indicators each of the questions are linked to
- Provide guidance on how to answer
- The Question Guide for the Community Questionnaire provides further conceptual clarification around the rights being monitored – what do the UNDRIP articles mean, etc.

Index tools

- The Indigenous Navigator National Index is a tool that serves to rank and illustrate countries' performance with regard to recognizing, respecting and fulfilling indigenous peoples' rights – are laws, policies and government programmes in line with the UNDRIP?
- The Indigenous Navigator Community Index is a tool that serves to rank and illustrate countries' performance with regard to implementing and fulfilling indigenous peoples' rights – what are communities' experiences?
- More details in Training Module 9

¹ We are still working on finalizing this guidance, wherefore as of June 2017, you still have to refer to the PDF files of the Question Guides

Human Rights Comparative Matrix

- Illustrates the links between the UNDRIP and other human rights instruments
- More details in Training Module 3

Indigenous Peoples' Sustainable Development Matrix

- Illustrates the links between the SDGs and the UNDRIP by linking SDG goals and targets with UNDRIP articles – offering guidance on how to respect, protect and fulfil indigenous peoples' rights in the context of SDG implementation
- More details in Training modules 5 and 6

Indicators for monitoring the UNDRIP

- A complete set of indicators for all key aspects of the UNDRIP. Where relevant, indicators for monitoring the commitments made by States at the World Conference on Indigenous Peoples in 2014 have also been integrated into the framework
- The UNDRIP indicators that also serve to monitor specific WCIP commitments are marked with (WCIP) in the overview. In the same way, relevant global SDG indicators have been integrated where relevant – these are marked (SDG) in the overview
- See Training Module 3, 8a and 8b

Indicators for monitoring outcomes of the World Conference on Indigenous Peoples

- A set of indicators for monitoring States' implementation of the commitments presented in the Outcome Document of the 2014 World Conference on Indigenous Peoples
- See Training Module 4
